

My name is Elise Boria and I'm a rising senior majoring in physics (with a minor in English) at Stony Brook University. Although I go to school on Long Island, I'm from Connecticut – which is arguably better (or at least more green). Aside from reading my textbooks, I also enjoy writing, watching movies, and going to the beach.

This summer, I am an REU student working in Dr. Metcalf's lab while also gaining further experience in the Laser Teaching Center. Through this work I hope to gain more experimental skills that can help further propel me into research and graduate school.
